Strategies to keep distractions at bay and rush through your task with singular mind focus. Book # 2 - Inner Peace: 18 Secrets to Ever Lasting Inner Peace and Contentment Peace of mind is not the absence of conflict from life, but the ability to cope with it. Inner peace is our natural state of being. This is not something we have to learn to acquire but what we do need to learn is to get out of our own way so that we can achieve complete solace and inner peace. If inner peace is our default state of mind then why are we so lacking in it? What is the cause of disruption to inner peace? Why are we not always calm, composed and serene? Why do need to do something to acquire something which is already supposed to be our default state. The truth is that we do not need to acquire inner peace. We are already always at peace. The true nature of our soul is to be at peace with itself. But since the time we were born we are conditioned to believe that something has to be done to maintain our state of well being and inner peace. Nothing could be farther from truth. We are constantly on the run to achieve one thing after another. As soon as we achieve one goal our eyes are set on the next one. Why all this fuss about achievement and acquiring material possessions? When and where did we pick up the notion that achievements and possessions were necessary for us? As a human race we all have an inbuilt desire to succeed and progress in life, but this becomes a problem when we begin to stake all our self worth and happiness on the fulfillment of these desires and achievement of material goals. So let us begin this journey where you will learn a new way of life and a new mindset. It is a promise that if you make the advice offered here, a part of your being, you will be in a state of eternal mental peace. Once you are well established in these teachings and begin to live by them you will experience a long lasting inner calm, that will be yours irrespective of what goes on in the outside world.
